

MANAGING FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

A six-week certificate course

Institute of Business Administration (IBA)
University of Dhaka

BACKGROUND

As part of its continuous commitment towards developing management efficiency in the private sector in today's everchanging business dynamics, the Institute of Business Administration (IBA), University of Dhaka is offering a 6 week long certificate course on Managing Financial Institutions.

This six-week course will provide management insight on prudent risk management for firms operating in the financial services industry, be it a commercial bank, savings bank, investment bank, or even an insurance company. The central theme will revolve around the different forms of risk faced by financial institutions and the risk management tools available in the market. The course contents will cover credit risk, market risk, liquidity risk, and regulatory risk, among others.

COURSE OBJECTIVE

The objective of the course is to provide an overview of risk management in financial institutions and intermediaries ranging from commercial banks to non-banking financial institutions (NBFI) like insurance, finance companies, and leasing. The course examines the principles and practices of defining and measuring different risk types to which these institutions are exposed to, and effective policies for successful and prudential risk management.

Students are also introduced to international standards of banking and insurance practices and how they impact the functioning of these institutions.

The following topics will also be covered:

- ◆ Regulatory framework, competitive landscape, key players, and ongoing strategic initiatives in financial services industry.
- ◆ Balance sheet and liquidity management in financial institutions; role of financial instruments in balance sheet management.
- ◆ Different sources of risk and the fundamentals of risk management framework in modern banking
